

A portrait of a man with a beard and mustache, wearing a red tunic with a white collar and a gold chain. He is looking slightly to the right.

THE MAKING OF THE BRITISH ISLES

THE STATE OF BRITAIN AND IRELAND
1450-1660

A historical map of the British Isles, showing Scotland, Ireland, and England. The map is detailed with coastlines, rivers, and various place names. A compass rose is visible on the right side.

STEVEN G. ELLIS

WITH CHRISTOPHER MAGINN

CONTENTS

Series editor's preface (2001)	viii
Preface	xii
Introduction: the making of British history	xv
Acknowledgements	xxi
The Royal Houses of England, Scotland and Great Britain	xxii
Maps	xxv
1 Geography, society and government:
the structures of power	1
State formation: unions and conquests	1
Geography, power and society	7
Frontiers and defence	12
Military forces and the border surnames	17
Nation, culture and identity	23
2 Politics, war and diplomacy, 1450–1502	27
English defeat, Scottish monarchy and Gaelic revival	28
Centre and periphery in the Wars of the Roses	39
The Scottish monarchy and Anglo-Scottish relations	50
3 The revival of crown government	55
Restoring royal finances	59
English provincial administration	66
The rule of the English marches	70
Royal government in Scotland: an alternative approach	79

4	Machines built for the battlefield: Renaissance monarchy, 1502–60	83
	War, taxation and the rise of Wolsey	85
	Tudor reform, rebellion and the royal divorce	94
	Anglo-Scottish relations and the renewal of war	107
	'The monstrous regiment of women'	115
5	The Reformation crisis: the origins of a Protestant state	121
	The Henrician Reformation	123
	Reform and reaction: the Tudor church militant	129
	The Elizabethan settlement	134
	Scotland: an alternative pattern of reform	139
6	The Reformation crisis: reform in the parishes	148
	'The polities of the best reformed kirks': Scotland	148
	Change and continuity in the Tudor church	156
	Enforcing the Elizabethan settlement:
	the opening phase	161
	Poverty and the Word in the pastoral uplands	166
	Tarrying for the magistrate	170
	The Catholic threat	175
	The Puritan threat	177
7	State intervention and the problems of society	183
	Population trends and 'the just price'	183
	Riot and rebellion	191
	Regulating the economy	197
	The poor law	205
	Inhibiting vagrancy	210
8	The emergence of a British state system, 1560–84	215
	Centre and periphery under Elizabeth	217
	Elizabethan finance	222
	Royal marriages, the Tudor succession and Scottish civil war	225

	Mary, the Norfolk marriage scheme, and rebellion	233
	Anglo-Scottish relations, frontier defence and Catholic intrigues	241
9	The testing-time of the Protestant state system, 1584–1603	254
	England's long war with Spain	255
	The reassertion of royal authority in Scotland	265
	The struggle for Britain and Ireland's Gaelic district	271
	The last years of the last Tudor	285
10	British multiple monarchy, 1603–37	289
	James VI and I's perfect union	290
	King James and his Gaelic subjects	295
	Religious 'congruity' and fiscal crisis	298
	Faction, favourites and the drift towards war	302
	Finance and religion: Charles I's war and his English kingdom	306
	Charles I's interventions in Ireland and Scotland: a pattern established	315
	English constitutional opposition	323
	Authoritarian rule in three kingdoms	326
11	The destruction and restoration of multiple monarchy, 1637–60	333
	Challenge to authoritarian rule: the Scottish National Covenant	335
	The wars of the Stuart kingdoms	339
	Commonwealth vs. multiple monarchy	358
	Cromwell's Commonwealth	362
	The collapse of republican government	369
	Conclusion	372
	Bibliography	379
	Index	401